

Please do not change any regulations which would decrease the efficacy of Indiana's current telephone privacy laws. Before signing up for the Indiana 'no call list', I received many telemarketing calls. These were disruptive and unwanted. My job requires me to have a home office with a separate line for business. Since I have signed up for the list, I have been able to be more productive with far fewer interruptions due to these annoying calls. Prior to Indiana's law, I would receive 6 calls or more each day. Many of these companies would continue to call me even after I had requested them to remove me from their calling list. Since the law, I do not receive any calls.
